The image provided by the historic New Orleans collectionCar named Lust Characters could be a family enterprise that would most likely have been bowled at Fazio's bowling alley at 1301 N. Lampart St. Bowling, Stevie Webber of the Professional Bowling Association, who owns Arabi Ball in The Diocese of St Bernard. It is a lifelong sport Webber. There's a picture of me pushing a ball out of an alley when I'm two or three years old. Webber also put the ball on the team at Holy Cross High School, which won the state championship for the third year in a row (bowling is now a sport approved by the Louisiana High School Athletes Association). Stevie Webber's older brother Jimmy had a professional bowling career before he passed away from cancer in 2003. Webber became a more committed bowler in the years that after that. As he explains, bowlers can become members of the PBA by averaging more than 210 in the league over the years, or by bowling in local tournaments. If you win (cash) area you are a PBA member, but as an amateur you can cash in twice a year. Webber joined the PBA in 1988, but only became serious after 2003. By 05, he had made team America for the PBA, and his career as a bowling pro has been in the fast lane ever since. For Pro Bowlers, the prize level is not as good as golf or tennis, but there are guarantees and incentives... I actually do it full-time for a living. Bowling is how he met his wife Beverly. I met her at an Atlanta bowling convention. I bowled in Chattanooga and went back to bowl in Atlanta. I just stayed there! They now have a daughter, Kayla, and live in Chalmette after rebuilding their home after Hurricane Katrina. Bowling fans can catch Stevie Weber on cable TV at noon during the PBA tournament and ESPN at noon on Sunday. For serious local bowling, Webber can go to Kenner's All-Star Lane, where Alex Handbeck supplies equipment and gives advice at a local outlet in McCovey's pro shop. (Yes, they do offer bowling shirts - though Handbeck says the retro style is out these days.) Handbeck's career is based on bowling, and the pro shop chain has grown from two to 24 nationwide. Handbeck has 64 lanes by All-Star Lane (part of AMF Corporation), all filled with league bowlers on weekday nights. He estimates there are currently between 2,000 and 2,300 league bowlers using the All-Star. Less serious bowlers, including children celebrating birthdays, can enjoy Harahan's colonial lanes. In addition to playing leagues, there is also a planning program for children's parties. The night party crowd is always ready for the Rock-N-Bowl, which has a new location: 3016 S. Carrollton Ave. In 1988, Rock-N-Ball owner John Blander made a pilgrimage to Medjugorje, a former Yugoslavia site where his blessed mother appeared, while his close family was also struggling financially. At the shrine, Blancher wrote a petition asking how he would take care of his family. He returned in a week when buddy Long, an accountant, came up to me and said 'I want to buy a bowling alley'. I thought about it. I asked for something. Maybe this was it. Mid-City Lane rentals and all bowling equipment belonged to the Knights of Columbus. With the choice to move everything at a cost of $50,000 or sell a $10,000 bill to Blander, the Knights sold it to him. Blancher had little bowling experience (his parents bowled in the Pelican Rains League and the kids ran away) and knew very little about the business. The day before I took over the bowling alley, I was there. They had a $29 total, bowling and bar. Bowling High School League on Wednesday night, there were some school physical education classes (Metterry Park Country Day school students bowling there) but had little income. Blancher's luck changed. Rock-N-Ball evolves. It started with a theater club across the street, the old Fontainebleau Motor Hotel was then Bayou Plaza and there was the Bayou Plaza Dinner Theatre. After rehearsals, he said, a few actors and actresses came, and they all came. Theatre people start coming on weekends. They'd show up, jukeboxes would be played, they'd jump from the bar and dance in jukeboxes and I had a number of actors playing. And one night I jokingly said, 'Rocks and bowls!' Said. The next step was live music: I decided to try the band on a Friday night, Johnny J and hit man. Two or three months later, I started playing music on Saturday nights as well. I think everything was sorted, and at that time there was a real need for a live music venue in the neighborhood. Eclectic people, bohemians, hipsters, a lot of people started coming. 20 years after he took over the lease, Blanshine moved businesses, equipment and all to its current location. I do 60% more business than I do on the street. The response was overwhelmingly positive. And that TV ad, where he grabs a cue card (he follows what singer Bob Dylan saw to do on MTV)? They tell me it's the longest running commercial in the country - 18 years on the air! And like Rolling Stone, the bowling business continues.
